A swirl of blue and white across the field and voices wildly cheering "Beat em Hen Hud;"
students bent over books to reap the fruits of learning;
a chorus of blended voices;
a magazine drive over the top:
these all are Hendrick Hudson. Yet there is something more, beyond the scope of concrete things. There is a spirit of understanding and friendship between student and faculty:
a gracious smile from a teacher in whose class we've never sat;
a principal who greets us warmly and knows each name, each attitude.

We have a new school so much larger than the old, with numerous facilities to encourage the highest and most modern methods of education, and yet, with the change, the spirit has remained. The school upon the hill has a new body, a new face, but the heart which beats within, the spirit to work with each other, the cooperation between student and faculty has not changed. To this spirit from which emanates the distinctive character of Hendrick Hudson we most sincerely dedicate this book.

HALFMOON

This book is called The Half Moon. It was created by a group of students interested in writing and picture making. It's all about "Our School," Hendrick Hudson, which is situated in Montrose, atop a beautifully rolling hill. The First Act shows the faculty of "Our School." The date, September 1962, just before the dawn of our seniors' last year. The sky is beginning to show some streaks of light over in the East there, back of our athletic field.

The school is reawakening with the arrival of new life. The under-classmen, new to this school, tread softly, somewhat awed, at the immense newness of it all. The teachers are ready for a new year, looking expectantly for an acute and inquiring mind to enter their classrooms. There come the seniors. They see their school with new eyes. Today it is theirs to lead to great heights. Voices fill the rooms, footsteps sound through the halls, and school is in session.

Enclosed in their case of iron and brick, the classrooms of Hendrick Hudson may seem a long way from racial tensions in the South or anxious conferences in Geneva. But these ideas too enter "Our School." The world today is involved in a cold war which is perhaps generating more heat than all past wars. Peoples are lashing out at each other, country against country, race against race. It seems the desire of some men to relieve all humanity of their problems by relieving the earth of all humanity. Testing is being carried on in the atmosphere above our lands, perhaps endangering generations to come and yet people are content to let it continue. Into "Our School" these ideas come. And when Hendrick Hudson's doors are opened and the pupils of "Our School" enter "Our World," it will be their job to help to see that the evil forces of war and strife are destroyed before they destroy us.

Is this a big job? You said it. Will "Our School" be able to turn out young adults able to help in this job? I certainly hope so.

Now about "Our School." Let's see, the first class graduated way back in 1928. Perhaps nobody very famous ever came out of Hendrick Hudson, but it's always been a place where the highest academic standards were met, and where sports and music, art and drama, were integral parts of the curriculum. The renovation of the old building and the addition of a new one, have brought us a welcome change. We have room to stretch our legs and facilities to meet our every need.

Thus another year begins. There's Mr. Kiefer coming along now. He's the principal of our school. He used to teach English awhile back and was also an awfully good coach. There's the rest of the faculty taking their places now and I guess we're 'bout ready to begin.

The boy you're going to hear from next is Lucas Gomez. He's a member of the graduating class and has some definite ideas about the faculty of "Our School." Well here goes. Curtain going upon Act One of "Our School."

HENDRICK HUDSON HIGH

OUR FACULTY

School years go by so slowly yet so fast. Scores of people enter our lives and leave as quickly as they enter. Unlike the numerous people whose presence will never affect our lives, the presence of the faculty of "Our School" will always be felt by us. Neither time nor distance will erase their presence because a sculptor always leaves his mark on his work. The faculty will always be an integral part of our lives.

When we first entered school, each of us was a living clay waiting to be molded. Gently but firmly the faculty took us into their hands. Building up and tearing down went on constantly. Discouraged as they were at times, they never gave up. Through the years they employed their numerous and varied talents to perfect their sculpture. On graduation day their finished work, a more complete person, will be revealed.

If it were not for the men and women of the faculty, today the living clay would be a hardened unshaped mass. We are all deeply grateful to our faculty for having the dedication, time, strength, wisdom, and intelligence necessary to mold us into the young adults we are today.

ACTIVITIES

Reading and 'riting and 'rithmetic which once were all, are but part of school today. When the last text is closed and all classes are dismissed another part of "Our School's" life begins. Cub reporters with pens in hands interview school celebrities for the school paper and budding young scientists delve into the fascinating world of entomology and paleontology. (Reckon, they're o.k. if they can even figure out what the names mean).

This extra-curricular activity program is an important part of Hendrick Hudson. We elect a student government to lead us and choose an honor society to represent us. We have clubs that serve others and clubs that teach us, clubs that collect things and clubs that create things. We have activities that build the mind and those that build the body. Our clubs discuss and do everyhing from acting to zoology.

Joyce Leverich, one of our juniors told me the other day. "We are offered such a variety of extra-curricular activities that often we find it difficult to make our final selections. We try to select those activities which will meet our individual needs and talents."

With all there is to do after school we sometimes wonder how we manage to have time for school.

The next aspect of Hen Hud I'd like to show you is our music department. Whether you are a connoisseur of fine symphonic music or swinging jazz, you'll find it here. Debbie Friedman's been playing cello in the orchestra and saxophone in the band for years now. She'll point out some of the highlights.

During the football season, a marching band directed by Mr. Errante adds an extra touch of color to the flamboyancy of autumn foliage.

With winter's leaden sky and the stinging bite of frozen crystals of snow, can be heard the melodious voices of the Hendrick Hudsonnaires, directed by Mrs. Price, practicing Christmas carols. (This is just one of many girls' choirs). Across the hall the orchestra rehearses for the Spring Festival and the dance band tunes up, in preparation for their next number. "Getting to Know You, Getting to Know All About You." These words floating from the auditorium tell of rehearsals for the big spring musical, The King and I.

As the year wears on and graduation approaches, the activities of the musical organizations become more solemn. One hears the stirring tones of "Pomp and Circumstance" which the seniors will soon march to at commencement. Then the curtain comes down as the strains of the "Alma Mater" are played on June 23.

SPORTS

They play to win, but learn to lose graciously, for they are taught the meaning of sportsmanship at Hendrick Hudson. Donald Koerlin, an outstanding senior and athlete, has long been a part of sports at "Our School." In speaking about our athletic program he said—

"The spirit of sports has long been an intricate part of school life at Hendrick Hudson. This spirit is most noticeable during an athletic contest. It enables a quarterback to throw a long pass, a wrestler to pin his opponent, a basketball player to sink the winning basket late in the game, and a player to hit a home run in the bottom of the ninth. It brings satisfaction, cheers, and tears. It also takes rooters all over the county supporting their teams. It brings the student body and faculty into one closely knit group. This spirit brings thrills and excitement into our school life at Hendrick Hudson throughout the year.

Every year bone-weary, bruised, and battered football players move painfully to the locker room—sometimes they win; sometimes they lose. In any event they replay the game many times and the good moments and special thrills are never forgotten.

The basketball player plans until winter. Then under fine coaching, he provides the thrills with deft ball handling, high scoring, and many feats of individual skill. Many dreams are realized on the court, many hopes are shattered, but at all times the boys continue to work to the best of their ability.

Two boys alone in front of their teams and rooters spell wrestling. Circling, sweating, rushing and retreating, these boys think of nothing except their opponents and the pin. They must call on all the cunning, strength and ability at their command to obtain their ultimate goal—victory.

The great catch, the strike out, the homerun, the squeeze play, and the inevitable call of the umpire represent the thrills of baseball. The players' abilities to run, to hit, and to throw, encourage the excitement which spreads through the stands as the game proceeds. These will lead to many more victories for the school's batsmen.

Such is the spirit of sports at Hendrick Hudson. Ability, knowledge, and effort mean victory in sports at our school and represent on a small scale the true strength of a free America.

"There I was with a half nelson around my neck, almost wishing I hadn't stepped on the mat this day. I looked away from the half nelson, brought my right hand up and clamped down tight and started to roll him. He was a stubborn one, he didn't go all the way, but countered the roll with a palm up and there I was with my back on the mat and my eyes dazzled by the lights. I got up on my neck and started to bridge with all my might, until all the veins in my neck stood out. I felt him giving way, and I knew this was the end of my opponent's streak. I got to my knees, and switched on him, and gained control of him. He tried to stand up, but I kept him down, then like a snake he was down on me with the guillotine. My inside pained me . . . I screamed and I could be heard all over the gym. I was in a terrible spot . . . everything was getting black . . . I was on my back again . . . My consciousness was going, I heard the buzzer."

Well, let's see now. You've seen the school, the faculty ,the activities and the sports. We do have one more very important part of our school to see, the students. Without these all we have seen before has no purpose. This student body is the life of "Our School," the reason for its existence. Let us start with the beginners, the underclassmen. Helen Kraus, you're an underclassman, how does it feel?

"You are a seventh grader, a freshman, a junior; an underclassman. You are a member of a very large, most importnat group of people in our school. With each year come new sights, new responsibilities, and a new title. You are trying on this title, seeing how it feels, and if it looks different from a previous one. Last year, you might have been an eighth grader, and now, if one mentions the word, "freshman" you hesitate, and then remember it is you to whom the person refers. Is there any real difference? Naturally there is. During the last year you have had countless experiences, memories to be kept and later looked back upon, and hopes for the future. Soon, you will no longer hold the title of 'underclassmen,' but will ascend the last step of this particular goal. There will be numerous goals ahead, and at one time or another, you will always be an 'underclassman.'

SENIORS

CLASS OF 1963

Well, we've almost come to the end of our story. There's only one group left. They've been mentioned before and have certainly been active in our sports and activities, but now we've come to the act devoted exclusively to them. This act is about the Seniors, their past achievements and their hopes for the future. I'd like to introduce Sandra Rudy. She's always been an active and interested member of Hendrick Hudson activities and now that her class has reached the summit of its high school career, she has a new and special feeling towards her school life.

Sandy, the stage is all yours.

Being a Senior makes us realize that the old familiar school road we have been traveling will shortly come to an end and we are dimly aware that a new and different road awaits us. As we look back over the fleeting year we have a feeling of satisfaction because of the accomplishments and progress we have made. And as we look into the future, we are filled with mixed emotions. We know we must move forward yet we are fearful of what lies ahead.

The Senior Year is a year of exhiliration and hard work as we strive to make our last year at Hendrick Hudson one that is truly outstanding. There are magazines and cards to be sold, a play to be produced, and preparations for our Washington trip to be made. This calls for some sacrifice but we, nevertheless, enjoy doing it.

As Seniors we realize we have a responsibility not only to our own class but to the entire school. By accepting these responsibilities graciously, we become more mature individuals and we are thus able to set a good example for the underclassmen who follow us.

When our school days begin to dwindle we become more conscious of the fact that we will soon be leaving Hendrick Hudson and venturing forth into a new world. Some of us will enter college. Some will go into the field of business. Others will join the Service. However, regardless of the direction in which we go, we know that the change will be a radical one.

On the way down the aisle to receive our diplomas, we are filled with gratitude for those faculty members who have worked with us patiently and diligently throughout our school years. It is through their interest and their efforts that we shall go forth to meet the challenges of tomorrow with faith in ourselves and confidence in our abilities. Our special thanks to Miss Testa and Mr. Bowles who, as our class advisors for four years, have contributed so much in helping and guiding us toward our anticipated goals.

When, following the Senior Banquet, we walk out the door and go our separate ways, we shall be leaving behind four of the most wonderful years of our lives: years filled with the stimulating companionship of friends, years filled with accomplishment and an ever deepening understanding of life and of ourselves. High school days will be over but memories will remain to warm our hearts and kindle fond recollections down through the years.

"LOOK NOT MOURNFULLY INTO THE PAST;

IT COMES NOT BACK AGAIN.

WISELY IMPROVE THE PRESENT; IT IS THINE.

GO FORTH TO MEET THE SHADOWY FUTURE

WITHOUT FEAR AND A MANLY HEART."

Well folks, you have seen "Our School" — the bricks and mortar that are its outer covering, the people and ideas that are its heart. The last senior has left, has taken the step into the waiting world beyond "Our School." Another year has ended. Another year of knowledge and cheers, successes, failures, and life has passed through "Our School." The underclassmen are waiting for their turn to come and the faculty is waiting to help them. "Our School" is quiet now, resting and waiting. Next year there will be new life here and another year will begin. You get a good rest too. Good night.
